David Campbell-O’Dell DNP
My DNP project focused on the frequency of documentation of recommended cancer survivorship guidelines by oncology clinicians of adult hematopoietic stem cell transplant (aka bone marrow transplant) survivors at 12 and 24 months post-transplant in one comprehensive cancer center. Cancer treatments for hematologic malignancies can include radiation, chemotherapy, immunosuppression, stem cell transplant, and targeted biological therapies. These therapies can cause long-term side effects that may negatively affect quality of life. Many of these late effects are modifiable when a proactive systematic plan of prevention and surveillance is implemented – a Cancer Survivorship Care Plan. This plan is most effective when factors such as past treatments, chromosomal prognostic factors, comorbid health conditions, and lifestyle behaviors are considered.

That was in 2011. Seven years later, Cancer Survivorship Care Plans remain a luxury of cancer treatments – not the standard. Over the years, the National Coalition for Cancer Survivorship has been trying to change this through various pieces of legislation that would make Cancer Survivorship Care Plans a standard part of everyone’s cancer treatment. Despite the benefits of providing Survivorship Care planning, Washington politics have prohibited the successful passage of previously proposed legislation to implement this.

Thankfully, Congressman Mark DeSaulnier (D-CA) and Congressman Ted Poe (R-TX) recently introduced the bipartisan Cancer Care Planning and Communications (CCPC) Act, H.R. 5160. As Reps. DeSaulnier and Poe are both cancer survivors, they understand the physical and emotional benefits of care planning for patients and their families facing a cancer diagnosis.

The CCPC will help cancer patients through the difficult process of cancer diagnosis, treatment choices, treatment management, and survivorship care by providing them a written plan or cancer road map, promote shared decision-making between survivors and their cancer care teams and support informed decisions. The CCPC will also empower patients with information necessary to help manage and coordinate their care through diagnosis, treatment and survivorship. A written plan facilitates the transition to survivorship and the ongoing follow-up that is required.

I urge you to take action and contact your member of Congress today! For more information, please visit https://www.canceradvocacy.org/cancer-policy/ccpc-act/?mc_cid=6733eff013&mc_eid=3ce6ce444b.

Until next time…..

Jill Beavers-Kirby
DNP, MS, ACNP-BC
received her Doctorate of Nursing Practice at The Ohio State University in May 2011. She currently serves Coordinator of Nurse Practitioner Programs and Associate Professor at Mount Carmel College of Nursing; she has served in this role since November, 2015. She also serves as a Visiting Professor for Chamberlain University in 2014. She has been a Board Certified Acute Care Nurse Practitioner since 2005 and she is also Board Certified as an Adult Nurse Practitioner. She has worked in a variety of patient settings most recently in hematology working with patients who had leukemia and lymphoma. She is licensed as a Registered Nurse in 12 states which permits her to educate students across the U.S. She has an extensive teaching history which includes Health Policy, Health Assessment, and Transition to Professional Roles for Nurse Practitioners. Dr. Beavers-Kirby is a founder, past president, and president elect for the Council for Ohio Health Care Advocacy (COHCA). She is also a devoted patient advocate and is actively involved with the Ohio Nurses Association Legislative Committee and she is an Ambassador for the Arthritis Foundation Policy.

Despite the traditional use of analgesics to reduce postoperative pain, open-heart surgical patients continue to have uncontrolled acute pain that can persist for up to three years (Claudio, Luigi, Pompilio, Cesare, & Marco, 2015). The non pharmacological strategy guided imagery can be used to solve this problem, which is known to be effective in reducing acute pain and anxiety, and improving sleep quality among different patient populations, including those who are critically ill, have had orthopedic and cardiac surgeries, and cancer (Patricolo et al., 2017; Serra et. al., 2012; Short, Gibb, Fildes, & Holmes, 2013; Lin, 2012). Guided imagery assists patients to relax, have lesser pain and anxiety by making them imagine desirable images, scenes, or experiences (Foji, Tadayonfar, Mohsenpour, & Rakhshani, 2015). It is also commonly used in addition to pharmacologic agents to reduce postoperative pain (Short et al., 2013; Lin, 2012). It can be provided to patients in different ways such as via a portable device that plays audio recordings with encouraging words and soothing music to bring positive thoughts and feelings, which can help in reducing pain after cardiac surgery.

The website Health Journeys available at www.healthjourneys.com provides available different programs of guided imagery that can be utilized in different healthcare settings. There are guided imagery programs specifically for cardiac surgery, oncology, labor and delivery, and many more that can be easily purchased and used in practice. Nurses facilitate this intervention, and patients can listen to these programs repeatedly on their own time. With the benefits that guided imagery can offer, it could be utilized in bedside nursing to promote holistic practice and improve patients’ health outcome and well being.

The purpose of my own DNP project is to examine the use of guided imagery for patients who have had open-heart surgery. If open-heart surgical patients utilize guided imagery, the intervention could have lesser pain and be more motivated for their recovery. This is not to mention the potential for improved attitude, perspective, and outlook. The results of a DNP Project, from Dr. Theresa Reed DNP who is also a Rutgers graduate, demonstrated positive effects on reduction of pain and anxiety (Reed, Bradshaw, & Charles, 2016). My faculty has also had good results using guided imagery in select conditions, such as post-traumatic stress disorder (Bradshaw, 2016).

Perhaps guided imagery is a potential adjunctive therapy for your patient population? I would encourage everyone to explore this further by visiting the site Health Journeys, www.healthjourneys.com.

March 2018 Survey Results: Sustaining the DNP after graduation.

The March 2018 survey requested feedback from graduates to explore how DNP outcomes are disseminated and perceptions of the impact of these projects.

Question 1: I am able to disseminate my work to key stakeholders and organizations.
43% very much to absolutely, 57% somewhat to not at all

Question 2: My work product as a result of my education is making a difference.
71% very much to absolutely, 29% somewhat to not at all

Question 3: I can see a measurable improvement in practice as a result of my educational preparation.
86% very much to absolutely, 14% somewhat to not at all

Question 4: The DNP prepared nurse has demonstrated positive results from what I see in my work environment.
79% very much to absolutely, 21% somewhat to not at all

Question 5: If I had to do it again, I would work to earn the DNP degree over other doctoral options.
71% very much to absolutely, 29% somewhat to not at all

Clearly the respondents believe that the work of the DNP prepared nurse has value, yet the majority point out that they are not able to disseminate the work adequately to key stakeholders and organizations.

What do you think? Do these findings reflect your point of view?

Social media, and the ability to engage colleagues helps us build our community. There are many opportunities to communicate through LinkedIn, Facebook, Twitter, Google + and other services. All help to enhance the way we connect. The Doctors of Nursing Practice organization is an integral part of the effort to build community to improve outcomes by enhancing the caliber of skills and talents offered by the DNP prepared nursing professional. The DNP Inc. online community is a great example of multifaceted services providing forums, blogs, events, chats, and groups. Many colleagues have engaged others in discussions and have been able to connect to support and challenge.

Other services that are being developed (along with the 2018 National DNP Conference taking place in Palm Springs, CA in September) include web-based services such as a Scholarly Practice Project Repository, Listing of DNP Programs, DNP Foundation, and of course the DNP Online Community. All are welcomed to participate and benefit from all of these services. After all, the foundation of the DNP degree is to improve outcomes as a result of the individual and collective skills of doctorally prepared nursing professionals.

Please click into the links provided in this newsletter to see how you can be a part of building the community that supports us all in our important work.

JOIN OUR FACULTY!

The Capstone College of Nursing at The University of Alabama (UA) invites applications for full-time faculty positions at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor. With an enrollment of over 2,200 nursing students, we offer traditional BSN and RN-to-BSN programs. At the master’s level, we offer programs for case managers, clinical nurse leaders, nurse administrators, and nurse practitioners. We also offer doctoral programs leading to Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) and Doctor of Education for Nurse Educators (EdD) degrees.

A doctorate in nursing or related field is required. Preference will be given to candidates with an established program of research and/or current advanced practice experience. For the nurse practitioner concentration, certification as a Family Nurse Practitioner and/or Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioner is required.

With our winning traditions in athletics and academics, The University of Alabama has been ranked among the top 50 public universities by U.S. News and World Report for more than a decade. Forty percent of our freshman class scored 30 or higher on their ACT exams; and we have more than 600 national merit scholars enrolled. Our university placed 58th in the Forbes list of top U.S. employers, for all sectors of employment.

We are located in Tuscaloosa, a vibrant college community of 160,000, with a moderate climate. Our campus has been ranked as one of the most beautiful campuses in America. Come join us for a stimulating work environment and a great quality of life.

For more information, visit our college website: http://nursing.ua.edu or contact Dean Suzanne Prevost at 205-348-1040.
